„GENERATIONAL RENEWAL IN LITHUANIAN RURAL AREAS: YOUTH ENGAGEMENT, DECISIONS AND FUTURE DIRECTIONS“

In order to set strategic priorities, measures, and areas of activity for education and rural development, and to ensure generational renewal in rural areas of Lithuania, it is important to focus on innovative solutions and measures that would encourage young people to stay in rural areas and participate in agriculture and other activities there. The seminar will present the results of scientific research on the attitudes of young people and agricultural entities towards generational renewal, as well as the incentives for young people to settle, live in rural areas, and take up farming and/or business activities. Examples of good practices in generational renewal processes in other countries will be discussed, as well as opportunities for young people to find employment in the agricultural sector and measures that would motivate them to choose to live and work in rural areas in Lithuania.
