

Seminar

„HOW CAN CONTROLLED DRAINAGE SYSTEMS BE USED AND MAINTAINED TO ENSURE EFFECTIVE PERFORMANCE?“

One potential approach to reducing the impact of climate change on agriculture is to upgrade conventional drainage systems to controlled drainage systems. In Lithuania, numerous water-regulated drainage wells have been installed during drainage system reconstruction projects. This seminar will discuss the key technical and operational factors that limit the effectiveness of controlled drainage systems in agricultural applications.